

CURRENT OVERVIEW

Brighton-based singer-songwriter Seany continues to develop his self-described “Fly Folk” sound — intimate fingerstyle guitar and vocals weaving together folk, soul and pop with groove and an observational, wry eye for the human condition.

Known for his distinctive reinterpretations of cover songs and his observational songwriting drawn from everyday human behaviour, Seany is currently working on new material that further explores themes of individuality, emotion and social nuance.

With a live performance style shaped by years on London and Brighton stages, his music connects quietly but powerfully with listeners who don’t fit neat boxes.

New releases are planned for the near future.